

Curtains Up at The Actors Gymnasium

The Actors Gymnasium is pleased to announce the installation of new drapes in its theater made possible by a grant from The Saints as part of their mission to support arts organizations in Chicago and nearby communities through volunteer and charitable services.

The new drapes were installed on Sunday after being delivered by manufacturers MainStage Theatrical Supply. The Actors Gymnasium puts on eight productions annually, ranging from summer camp performances and youth performances to original circus-theatre productions featuring the best of the Chicago circus community.

"After years of dealing with mismatched drapes held together by gaff tape, upholstery thread, and hope, we finally have drapes that match the professionalism and hard work that our students and performers bring to the space," says Co-Artistic Director Larry DiStasi.

The Actors Gymnasium was one of 22 organizations to be awarded a total of $115,000 in grants. In total 144 applications were submitted for the grants that ranged from $500 to $7,500. Funding for the grants comes almost exclusively from the annual membership dues of the 2,200 members of the Saints.

The curtains will be put to immediate use for a production opening May 16 titled The Great Superhero Exposition: Spring Youth Circus.

Co-Artistic Director Larry DiStasi unpacks the new drapes as Nicholas Carroll assists with installation.
